

Shyra Barberstock: As President and Chief Executive Officer of Okwaho Equal Source, Shyra plays a pivotal role as ambassador and external relations specialist. An accomplished Indigenous innovator and leader, Shyra's entrepreneurial spirit and her passion to make a positive difference for Indigenous peoples in Canada, was the driving force behind the creation of the 2014 launch of the Okwaho Network – the first social network for Indigenous peoples on a global scale. An academic at heart, Shyra is currently pursuing her PhD in Geography and Planning at Queen's University with a research focus on Indigenous social innovation and community building. With a wealth of knowledge in Indigenous economic development, best practice models, capacity development, and entrepreneurship, Shyra plays an integral role in thought leadership, research and consulting for Okwaho Equal Source.
